Econ 581: Collective Bargaining

Economics

An introductory course to the field of collective bargaining in the private and public sectors covering such topics as the history of unionism in America, the organizing process, the negotiating process, and administration of the collective bargaining agreement. Emphasis on pragmatic problems confronted by employers, employees, and unions.

3 Credits

Prerequisites
- Mgmt 383: Human Resource Management
- Senior standing required.

Cross-listed Courses
- Mgmt 581: Collective Bargaining

Instruction Type(s)
- Lecture: Lecture for Econ 581

Subject Areas
- Applied Economics
- Labor Studies

Related Areas
- Development Economics and International Development
- Econometrics and Quantitative Economics
- Economics, General
- Economics, Other
- Human Resources Development
- Human Resources Management and Services, Other
- Human Resources Management/Personnel Administration, General
- International Economics
- Labor and Industrial Relations
- Organizational Behavior Studies