

Anth 104: Introduction to Geography

Sociology & Anthropology

This course uses perspectives of geography and anthropology to examine how peoples and places are connected. It raises awareness of intersecting contemporary problems, such as social and economic injustice, food insecurity, indigenous survival, conflict, loss of biodiversity, natural resource depletion, and climate change, and it emphasizes the importance of thoughtful and sustainable habitation on Earth.

3 Credits

Cross-listed Courses

- Geog 101: Introduction to Geography

Subject Areas

- Demography and Population Studies
- Environmental Studies
- International/Global Studies

