

Soc 619: Religion, Gender, and Sexuality

Sociology & Anthropology

This course considers how religion shapes, maintains, and transforms gender and sexualities. Students are introduced to a growing body of contemporary sociological research that uses qualitative case studies to examine the intersection of religion, gender, and sexuality from a feminist and/or queer theoretical perspective.

3 Credits

Instruction Type(s)

- Seminar: Seminar for Soc 619

Subject Areas

- Sociology

