

Anth 110: Ancient Plagues

Sociology & Anthropology

This introductory course explores archaeological and skeletal evidence of infectious disease and uses archaeological, bioarchaeological, and cultural historical approaches to examine how humans have adapted to infectious diseases through history. These epidemics affected how we view healthy versus unhealthy individuals, religion, medicine, and marginalized populations. They have caused also lifestyle changes through time that have led to the development of new diseases and their rapid transmission.

3 Credits

Instruction Type(s)

- Lecture: Lecture for Anth 110

Subject Areas

- Anthropology

Related Areas

- Physical and Biological Anthropology

