

Soc 352: International Migration

Sociology & Anthropology

This course is an examination of contemporary human migration patterns using theories from demography and sociology as a backdrop to study internal and international migration processes including who migrates, when they migrate, why they migrate, the process of assimilation into the country, and migration policy.

3 Credits

Cross-listed Courses

- Anth 352: International Migration

Instruction Type(s)

- Seminar: Seminar for Soc 352

Subject Areas

- Anthropology

Related Areas

- Physical and Biological Anthropology

